Why are you running for student government?
Leemah Nasrati, Spencer Creal, and I collectively offer the most student government experience out of all executive candidates, which is advantageous because we know the workings of ASUN and, put simply, get things done. Our experience is counterbalanced by 40% of ELEVATE not currently being involved with ASUN, who will offer fresh perspective to student government. ASUN is a resource to all students, and it is vital that more students are aware of this. I want to ensure momentum is carried on with issues like sustainability and mental health awareness and resources.

What are you specifically hoping to accomplish in student government to improve the University over the upcoming year?
I want to see more work done on increasing outreach of ASUN, mental health, sustainability, campus sexual assault awareness and prevention, and several issues that affect students. Specifically as External VP, I want to facilitate a platform for more students in and outside of student government to voice their concerns at the Nebraska State Capitol, so that our congressional leaders are more aware of the various student concerns.
